(yet) is journey through everything in between; transit zones, temporary shelters, weightlessness and virtual spaces.

COMFORT 7/32/00 (2020)
40 pages, edition of 500, offset

Front page

The title COMFORT 7/32/00 refers to a note I found on the street one day, that became a portal into a state of mind or a particular time, although the time was out of date or imagined, floating in between past, present and future. The book is a journey through this imagined place, where vision oscillates between perception and mechanics, where objects and materials are in permanent state of melting or intersecting.
