NUMA SUCCESS STORIES

Sketchfab is a marketplace for 3D files (more than 300,000 files are on their website), and is becoming the go-to place for designers and creators to browse and share 3D files. They raised $7 million in Series A round led by FirstMark Capital in June 2016.

“The result of this program was amazing because the work of these two teams will be directly usable, and also because of the method that NUMA taught us. Everything that was told to us during the program made me realize the relevance of working closely with startups and use startups method.”
Yves-André Valot, CIO at TOTAL Marketing & Services about NUMA’s open innovation program.

With an advertising technology based on analyzing hashtag, Mesagraph was able to awaken the interest of Twitter, which in 2014 acquired the French start-up 2 and a half years after leaving the NUMA Sprint (season 1)!

After passing through Sprint NUMA (season 1), then at TechStars, DocTrackr is acquired by IntraLinks for $10 million.
